GARY GODFREY

BALLOONMEISTER

Gary Godfrey, a Page resident since 2000, is this year's Balloonmeister. Gary has been a Hot Air Balloon Pilot for 14 years. His love for the skies began in 2004 when he started as a crew member for Bryan Hill, the previous Page, AZ Balloon Regatta Balloonmeister. Bryan continued on to teach Gary the art of Hot Air Ballooning Pilotting.

Gary's Balloon, named Soar With Eagles, is a 90 cubic inch firefly. It's beautiful rainbow spiral pattern makes for a gorgeous sight! When asked what he feels is the best part of being in the Page, AZ Balloon Regatta, Gary responded, "The beautiful scenery! The lake, the dam, and being able to fly into Antelope Canyon! It's amazing to drop down between the walls of the canyon; it's like nothing I've ever experienced before!"

The winds have welcomed you with softness.
The sun has blessed you with its warm hands.
You have flown so high and so well, that God has joined you in your laughter and sent you gently back into the loving arms of Mother Earth!

AMANGIRI

Overlooking starkly beautiful desert scenery and the Southwest's iconic flat-topped mesas, Amangiri is a 900-acre sanctuary of wilderness and isolation.

Framing the dunes, plateaus and ridges, Amangiri's Suites embrace the raw esthetic of the desert. Camp Sarika's Pavilions promise an intimate, back-to-the-wild experience with no compromise on comfort.

How do they work?

HOT AIR BALLOONS

Hot air balloons are based on a very basic scientific principle: warmer air rises in cooler air.

Essentially, hot air is lighter than cool air, because it has less mass per unit of volume. The balloon or 'envelope' is a fabric bag made of strong, light nylon with an opening at one end called the mouth. The envelope is laid out on the ground before a flight and partially inflated with cold air from high-powered fans before the air is heated with the burners to create the lift required.

To keep the balloon rising, you need a way to reheat the air. Hot air balloons do this with a burner positioned under an open balloon envelope. As the air in the balloon cools, the pilot can reheat it by firing the burner. Modern hot air balloons heat the air by burning propane.

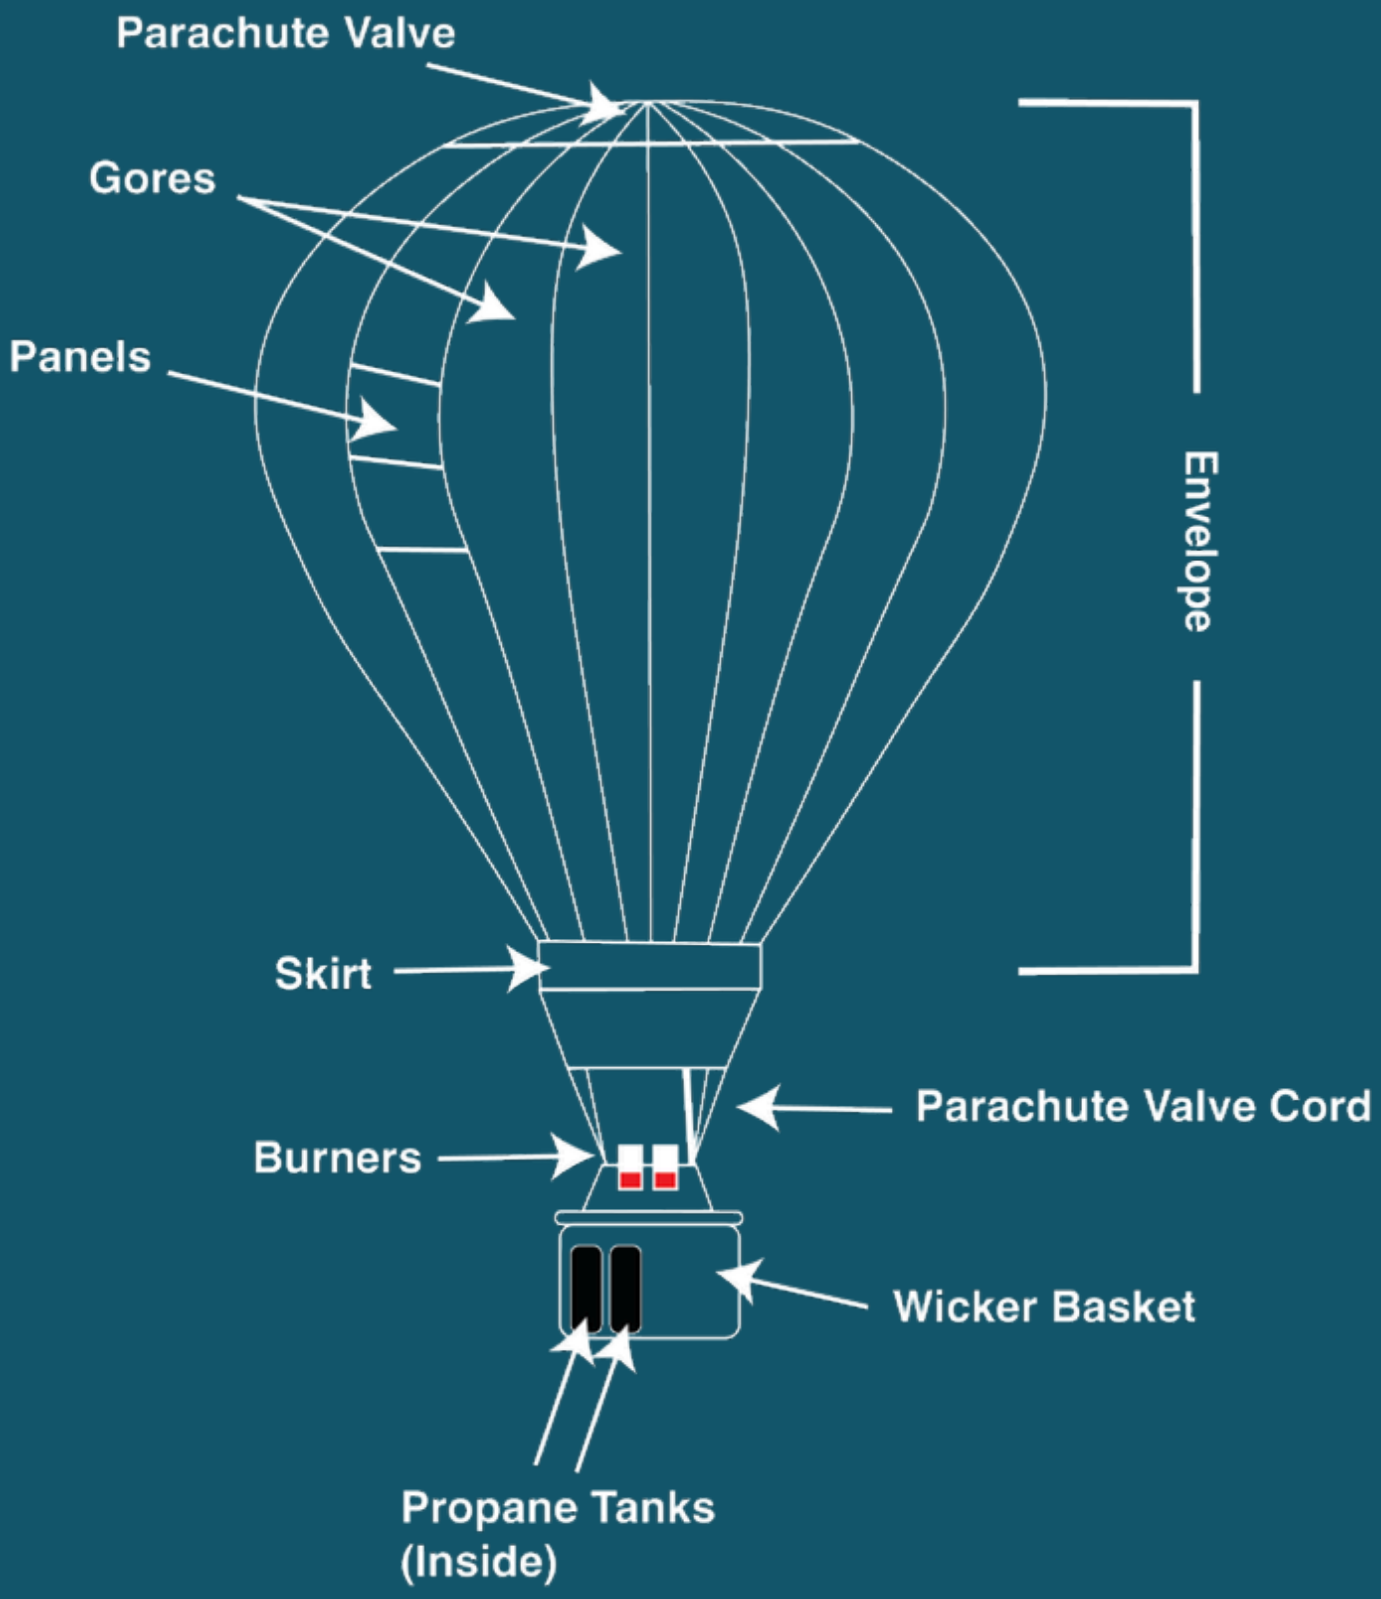

Balloons cannot be steered in the normal sense of the word so they travel in the direction of the wind, which varies at different altitudes. Pilots skillfully use this as a way of changing direction by burning to move up, or allowing the air to cool to move down, and catch different air streams at different heights.

Hot air balloons have a cord to open the parachute valve at the top of the envelope. When the pilot pulls the attached cord, some hot air can escape from the envelope, decreasing the inner air temperature. This causes the balloon to slow its ascent or begin its descent.

Hot air balloons don't land in pre-decided locations like planes or helicopters. When the basket touches down, sometimes there is a bump and the basket can occasionally tip over slightly. This is quite safe and normal. Balloons have been landing like this for over two hundred years and modern balloon baskets are designed for this.
